

Nongriat

About Nongriat

Nongriat is a village in the East Khasi Hills district of Meghalaya. This village is best known for its living root bridges. Nongriat has three functional root bridges and these root bridges are crafted by hand by the Khasi people for centuries by weaving and intertwining together the roots of banyan trees on opposite sides of the river continuously twisted together till it can be shaped and strengthened into a sturdy bridge.

There are two living root bridges in Nongriat, a single deck bridge and a double decker bridge.

Double decker living root bridge

The magnificent Nongriat Double Decker Living Root Bridge also known as the Umshiang Double Decker Living Root Bridge or simply the Double Decker Root Bridge can be found tucked away in the thick, green forests of Sohra (Cherrapunjee). An indigenous blend of engineering and nature that makes for a one of a kind attraction. Underneath the bridge, the Umshiang River runs through the Double Decker Root Bridge. The Living Root Bridge in Meghalaya is the ideal illustration of the cooperation between nature and man to fulfill a purpose.

Rainbow Falls

The journey to the Rainbow Falls takes one to two hours and begins at the Nongriat Double Decker Bridge. The name of the falls, which are hidden deep within a forest, comes from a little rainbow that appears next to the waterfall when the sun shines. The waterfall plunges into the pool while proudly flaunting the natural rainbow.
